WHAT'S OUT THERE...

Whilst it is important to ensure PSHE is part of a planned curriculum, it can also be used to address needs in a local context and form part of conversations we have with children and young people about their experiences and what's happening in the world around them.

We have collated some examples of topics that are being covered in TV and media that young people may want to discuss.

- Paramount+ is showing a new drama series - Curfew - that explores if a curfew for men would lead to less violence against women and girls. The show is based on the novel After Dark by Jayne Cowie, which we have added to our Books & PSHE pack.
- Netflix will be releasing a film, Joy, about IVF pioneers whose treatment led to the first test tube baby in 1978 later this month.
- The latest series of popular LGBT teen drama Heartstopper is all about Nick and Charlie's relationship. This series also brings Charlie's eating disorder to the fore. In 2021, Just like Us found, external that lesbian and bisexual teens were more than twice as likely to have had an eating disorder compared to straight girls, from a survey of nearly 3,000 teens across 375 UK schools.
- Wicked will be released in cinemas across the UK at the end of the month. This musical film highlights PSHE themes including Friendships, Peer Pressure, Self-esteem, Attraction and Similarities and Differences.
- The BBC shared details of the abuse experienced by a man in his relationship. It is important that Domestic Abuse resources show that abuse can be experienced by people of any gender and sexual orientation.
- Sky News reported that Sir Kier Starmer has been urged to support a new law to ban smartphones in schools as former teacher Josh MacAlister introduced the Safer Phone Bill.
- Former President, Donald Trump will become the 47th president of the USA.
- The government is planning to ban smoking outside schools and playgrounds.
- Instagram has defended new features, that were shared in last month's PSHE Digest, aimed at protecting young people from sextortion attempts on the platform.
- Call of Duty: Black Ops 6 was released last month. The game has an 18 age rating due to the content. The National College has information for parents and educators about other games within the series.
- TikTok and Telegram have featured as the most commonly reported platforms used for extremist purposes (sharing of attack footage, beheadings, instructional material and terrorist group media).

UPDATE FROM ELLIE

CONFERENCE UPDATE

This month sees our first-ever conference taking place. From Stoke-on-Trent, we have 1 in 10 primary schools attending, 3 in 4 secondary schools, as well as representatives from external providers, local partners and youth organisations. I'd like to say a massive thank you to everyone who has booked.

We're delighted to be able to share the agenda with you and look forward to seeing you on the day. Unfortunately, we are unable to accommodate any further bookings requests, as the seating plan, printing and arrangements with the venue and caterers have all been finalised.

IMPORTANT

CHANGE IN DETAILS FROM 2ND DECEMBER 2024.

You may be aware that for the first 3 years of my role and the PSHE Education service, I have been hosted by Ormiston Horizon Academy and line managed by the Chair of the Safer Schools Alliance.

From 2nd December 2024, I will be moving across to Staffordshire Council of Voluntary Youth Services (SCVYS), who have been hosting the Staffordshire Coordinator since 2021. Please note, this will mean a change in email address:

ellie@staffscvys.org.uk - please note this will not be active until 2nd December.

I look forward to joining the SCVYS team, strengthening the links between formal and informal education as well as learning from their vast knowledge of the broader partnership.

NEW! LOCALLY PRODUCED RESOURCES

We have developed a new best practice guidance document to support PSHE Leads embed consistent, evidence-based, quality PSHE in their own settings we have created a new pack to add to our collection - CPD.

This resource provides strategies to improve confidence, information on how to create a CPD plan, help to choose effective training, tips on delivering sensitive topics, answering questions and managing challenging behaviours.

We've continued to add to our new resource to help PSHE Leads with their notice board displays with posters from Life Lesson around bullying. Please let us know if there is anything specific you would like to see in this resource pack.

WEBSITE UPDATE

As a service we are continually reviewing how we provide support, advice and guidance to our education settings.

You may have noticed that we have made some changes to our website in our Education Providers section over the last month:

- New Linked Guidance section - key documents that PSHE Leads should have an awareness of that relate directly to the PSHE curriculum or are supporting documents as part of a whole school approach.
- New & PSHE section - these are still housed within the Resource Library under their relevant headings, but to support PSHE Leads with developing their CPD plan we have also created their own space within the website under "Training".

UPDATE FROM NATIONAL PARTNERS

HBT BULLYING

A survey by Just Like Us has found that more than three-quarters (78%) of 9-11-year-olds and a larger majority (80% of 11-18-year-olds) have heard homophobic language.

Many children reported having heard homophobic language on the social media platform TikTok and that it was intended as a "joke".

The Government Equalities Office, Equality Hub and Department for Education have published research evaluating the government's anti-homophobic, biphobic and transphobic \(HBT\) bullying programme which ran from 2016-2019 in schools in England. The 3-year programme reached around 1,800 schools and aimed to help schools prevent bullying and to create inclusive environments.

Findings show that the programme influenced changes to policies and processes. More staff reported that their school actively tried to prevent HBT bullying, including building an LGBT-inclusive environment - primary schools showed greater achievement than secondary schools in both these areas, though often from a lower baseline. There was an increase in inclusivity within most subject areas, and also around learning about HBT bullying in lessons.

The evaluation highlights that with support schools can make significant steps towards HBT bullying prevention and LGBT inclusion.

The case studies shows that primary schools often taught about LGBT identities and relationships through books, whereas secondary schools more often utilised assemblies, PSHE lessons and/or drop-down days. Pupils in secondary schools commented that they found lessons to be helpful where they had to match up LGBT-related words with their meanings: In response to this the PSHE Education Service, in partnership with USAH has developed its own version that settings can utilise. This activity could also be utilised for staff CPD. This is alongside our Books & PSHE Resource which we launched last month.

Pupils also thought that films were a good way to learn about LGBT identities, as they were easy to understand, and they enjoyed small group discussions, as this enabled them to gain insight into other people's perspectives and to think more about the issues. Diversity Roles Models have a library of short films and downloadable teacher resources, which complement each video's role model message. These are suitable from Early Years to Key Stage 5.

Diversity Role Models have published their Impact Report for the 2023-2024 academic year which highlights the impact of their workshops.

Just Like Us has now published resources for primary and secondary schools to help them tackle homophobia.

These resources can be utilised alongside our locally produced resources created in partnership with USAH around Hate Crimes, which we promoted last month and can be found in the Similarities and Differences heading of the Resource Library.

This short video shows the impact of homophobia and gives practical examples on how teachers, peers and parents/carers can all address homophobic comments.

GENDER

Teachers in Wales have called for better support for deal with the "alarming" misogynistic influence of social media on children in schools, specifically teenage boys according to the BBC.

Hello Magazine have published an article "Alarming rise in teenage boys' exposure to misogynistic content: What parents can do"

The Girlguiding Girls' Attitudes Survey 2024 reveals the levels of inequality and misogyny experienced by girls and young women. Notably, 59% of 11 to 21-year-olds express concerns that AI could be used to create fake images of them and impersonate them online. Additionally, the percentage of girls feeling 'unsafe due to sexism', has more than doubled over the past decade.

Girlguiding is calling on UK decision makers to take the concerns of girls and young women seriously and would like to see new and inclusive Relationships, Sex and Health Education (RSHE) resources in schools, to tackle sexism and misogyny and encourage better, healthier relationships.

RSHE forms part of a wider PSHE curriculum. PSHE education should primarily be used as preventative education, providing a foundational understanding from an early age about healthy relationships, respect, self-esteem, digital literacy, economic wellbeing, critical thinking, and recognising and challenging negative influences. Importantly, it should explore the links between these areas. This is crucial for safeguarding and building resistance to problematic narratives (as well as the influencers and algorithms that deliver them so effectively).

The Mayor of London has written to every primary school in London asking them to counter the 'pernicious influence' of misogynists such as Andrew Tate. Working with educational charity Tender, the mayor's office has funded training and the creation of a toolkit of sessions for children aged 9-11 years to help educate children about treating each other fairly and kindly and ensuring they are clear about what healthy and respectful relationships are about.

The PSHE Association has produced a guide "Addressing Misogyny, toxic Masculinity and Social Media Influence through PSHE Education"

The PSHE Digest from April 2023 provided more resources for young people and professionals to support education settings around this topic including:

- Bold Voices - Schools Toolkit on 'how to talk to young people about Andrew Tate'
- Bold Voices - Parents Toolkit on 'how to talk to young people about Andrew Tate'
- Bold Voices - Teens Toolkit on 'how to talk to your friends, siblings and peers about Andrew Tate'
- Durham University has created a toolkit on engaging Men and Boys about Masculine Gender Norms.

Our Bitesize Practice Development sessions with Everyone's Invited and Men at Work CIC can also be utilised within CPD sessions for staff. Please note the Everyone's Invited session contains clips that some viewers may find offensive, to demonstrate what young people are accessing and exposed to online. These videos are for professionals and are not suitable for use with children and young people.

Vodafone has released a film, for professionals, parents and carers titled 'The Rise of The Aggro-rithm', to highlight how AI algorithms are targeting Britain's teen and tween boys, turning harmless searches into harmful content.

VAPING & SMOKING

There is growing concern about the number of Spice-spiked vapes. As we previously shared, the University of Bath conducted research that showed 1 in 6 vapes confiscated in schools contained the synthetic drug - Spice. Many of the confiscated vapes were made to look like a typical vape from a shop, and are usually sold as containing THC. Children and young people are therefore inadvertently consuming Spice whilst under the impression it is cannabis.

Spice is highly addictive. It is a Class B drug. There are some reports across the country that some young people are becoming addicted to Spice and are being criminally exploited.

The Metropolitan police have stated that many children and young people are accessing illicit vapes via social media platforms like Snapchat and Telegram.

The House of Commons debated the issue and stated that "we should require schools to implement educational programmes on the danger of Spice, deceptive marketing tactics and the risks associated with online and street-level purchase"

The Government has announced that disposable vapes will be illegal from 1st June 2025. The number of people who vape without having ever smoked has increased considerably over the last few years - particularly among young adults. The Department for Environment, Food, and Rural Affairs (Defra) said vape usage in England had grown by more than 400% between 2012 and 2023, with 9% of the British public now buying and using the products. A new NHS survey has shown that almost 1 in 10 secondary school pupils currently vape. The report also shows only 11% of young people have smoked at least once, the lowest level recorded by the survey.

It is hoped that banning disposable vapes will "reduce the appeal of vapes to children and keep them out of the hands of vulnerable young people. The NHS states that vaping is substantially less harmful than smoking, but it has not been around long enough for its long-term risks to be known.

The BBC published an article "Pack of cigs and a Bic lighter: Why are celebs glamorising smoking again" which highlights singers, actors and influencers who seem to be bringing smoking back into vogue. The article highlights that 9 out of 10 films nominated for the Oscars top prize earlier this year featured smoking, up from 7 the year before.

We have added a resource from the Department of Health and Social Care to our Resource Library - Smoking and Vaping. The resource is three form-time activities where young people learn about social pressures around vaping, its impact, and the effects of nicotine on the adolescent brain—registration required.

The Daniel Spargo-Mabbs Foundation has reviewed and updated its free-to-download vaping resource pack. The resources include a short video for educators to brush up their knowledge, plus materials for 11-16 years and 16-18 years, including a PowerPoint, short film and lesson plan.

MENSTRUATION

Life Lessons have created a new 15 minute lesson on menopause awareness to celebrate World Menopause Day, which took place on 18th October. To create this lesson Life Lessons partnered with Period Positive.

Period Positive is a free project available to education settings. They have created a Period Positive National Curriculum for England that can be found in the new section of our website - Linked Guidance, where you will find a range of guidance to support your PSHE curriculum.

Education settings can also work towards their Period Positive Schools Award to find out more information check our their website or email - hello@positiveperiod.com

ROAD SAFETY

Road Safety remains as a priority in the draft Police and Crime Plan 2024-2028.

The AA has said that drivers aged under 21 who have just passed their tests should be prevented from carrying passengers of a similar age for their first six months as drivers. It has also suggested that they should be issued 6 penalty points for not wearing a seatbelt.

Similar measures - known as graduated driving licensing (GDL) - already exist in Northern Ireland. The Department for Transport (DfT) has said it is not currently considering the measures for elsewhere in the UK.

In response the BBC has spoken to a number of young adults for their response.

This could be a useful discussion point for classrooms and for young people to consider why the AA might be proposing these changes for young drivers.

Road Safety is not just about being a safe driver or passenger. Having road safety skills are life long skill that enable children and young people to be confident to navigate the streets. Walking or cycling to school requires the use of road safety skills and supports with Being Healthy and Physical Activity.

Remember Staffordshire Safer Roads Partnership supports education settings with PSHE on this topic - check out their brochure for Gold schools in our Resource Library under Road Safety or e-mail the team roadsafetyeducation@staffordshire.gov.uk to find out what support your school is entitled to.

A reminder that research advises against using shock and fear tactics in PSHE as they are often ineffective in achieving long-term behavioural change. They can cause an immediate emotional reaction but this does not necessarily lead to sustained changes in attitudes or behaviours. Shock and fear tactics can also cause unnecessary distress and anxiety amongst children and young people. This distress can prevent engagement with the learning or making disclosures about their own experiences. Effective PSHE focuses on creating a safe and supportive learning environment. Emphasising positive messaging, skill-building and providing accurate, reliable information.

INFANT MORTALITY

The Guardian has reported on a study from the Lancet Regional Health Europe journal regarding infant mortality in England. The research revealed that infants in the most deprived areas faced a higher risk of mortality compared to those in the least deprived areas. Four key factors—preterm birth, smoking during pregnancy, teenage pregnancy, and maternal depression—were found to contribute to over one-third of the socio-economic disparities in mortality rates. The article suggests that while targeted interventions addressing these factors could help reduce inequalities, broader structural changes are also necessary.

It is recognised that Stoke-on-Trent and Staffordshire have a high infant mortality rate. Stoke-on-Trent's infant mortality rate was 7.5 deaths per 1,000 births between 2019-2021 and Staffordshire had 4.8 per 1,000 births in the same time period compared with the national average of 3.9.

The Pan-Staffordshire PSHE Education Service is working with partners to explore how they can support the local action plan. We have several resources already in the Resource Library that support this area of work including:

- Locally-produced Safer Sleep resource for 14-16 years old which can be found under both the Sleep and Parenthood headings.
- National Association of Breastfeeding Mothers has a collection of resources suitable for Early Years to Key Stage 3 (3-14 years). This can be found under Parenthood in the Resource Library
- Our Growing Up pack for young people with SEND features a session plan (session 10) on pregnancy and parenthood, this could be adapted for use in mainstream settings too.

ONLINE SAFETY

Internet Matters has released a report detailing children's experiences with nude deepfakes, which are AI-generated or manipulated images and videos designed to appear real. The report estimates that 13% of UK teenagers have encountered nude deepfakes in various ways, such as sending or receiving them, finding them online, or using 'nudifying' apps.

The report is based on a survey of 2,000 parents and 1,000 children. Key findings include:

- Most families have limited or no understanding of deepfakes.
- More than half of teenagers believe that having a nude deepfake of themselves shared would be worse than sharing a real image.
- 'Nudifying' tools are predominantly used to create deepfakes of women and girls rather than boys.

The report recommends banning 'nudifying' tools and advocates for changes to the school curriculum to educate children on the responsible use of AI technology.

The Children's Commissioner for England has released a report detailing children's online experiences, based on feedback from the Big Ambition consultation involving both children and adults. The findings emphasize children's vulnerability to online harms and their concerns about issues such as child sexual abuse material, exposure to highly sexualized content, abusive content and bullying, and content related to suicide, self-harm, and eating disorders. The report highlights that some groups of children feel particularly exposed, with children as young as 5 and children with SEND both disproportionately reporting they feel unsafe. The report also includes children's perspectives on the responsibilities of tech companies, the government, parents, and schools, particularly about the usefulness and impact of current provisions e.g. PSHE, in ensuring their safety online. The Commissioner offers recommendations for legislation, guidance, and systemic reforms.

The UK Safer Internet Centre has launched their resources for Safer Internet Day 2025 for Early Years to Post-16. The theme next year is about protecting yourself and others from online scams.

MENTAL HEALTH LEADS

Schools and colleges can apply for a grant to train a Senior Mental Health Lead. This training helps school and college leaders promote and support the mental health and wellbeing of their pupils, and staff. Schools/Colleges can apply for a second grant if their SMHL left or changed roles before implementing a whole-school approach. Grants must be reserved by 31st December 2024.

The grant of £1,200 must be used to pay for DfE quality assured training. This training will provide a senior Mental Health Lead in the setting with the knowledge and skills to implement and sustain a whole school/college approach to mental health and wellbeing. This guidance clearly highlights the role of PSHE education plays in promoting social and emotional skills.

Mental Health Leads and PSHE Leads, where these roles are held by different people, should collaborate closely, along with the Designated Safeguarding Lead to create a supportive and comprehensive approach to the wellbeing of children and young people. Here are some considerations in how to work together effectively:

- Collaborative Planning - Meet regularly to plan and integrate mental health topics into the PSHE curriculum. This ensures that mental health education is consistent and comprehensive.
- Curriculum Mapping - Identify key areas where mental health education can be embedded within the PSHE curriculum, such as lesson on emotional wellbeing, stress management and healthy relationships.
- Joint Training - Organise and participate in joint training sessions for staff to ensure that everyone is equipped to handle mental health issues and deliver PSHE content effectively.
- Resource Sharing - Share resources, best practices, and up-to-date information on mental health and PSHE topics to enhance the overall quality of education.
- Create Safe Spaces - Work together to create an environment where children and young people feel safe to discuss mental health issues. This includes setting up safe spaces and ensuring confidentiality.
- Student Voice - Involve children and young people in the development of mental health and PSHE programmes to ensure they meet their actual needs and concerns.
- Feedback Mechanisms - Implement systems to gather feedback from children, young people and staff on the effectiveness of mental health and PSHE initiatives. Use this feedback to make continuous improvements.
- Assess Impact - Regularly assess the impact of mental health programmes within PSHE on the children and young people involved.
- Parent/Carer Engagement - Organise workshops and information sessions for parents and carers to help educate them about mental health and how they can support their children.
- Build Partnerships - Build Partnerships with local mental health organisations and services to provide additional support and resources for children and young people.

The PSHE Association has produced Teacher Guidance around teaching about mental health and emotional wellbeing.

As the PSHE Education Service provides a space for PSHE Leads to come together and share best practice and be updated on the latest guidance and research, The Mental Health Leads in Education Network continues to grow, with colleagues from education settings across Staffordshire and Stoke on Trent. Meetings are held termly and are a way of sharing information, resources and best practice as well as offering an opportunity for mental health leads to come together to ask questions, seek support, and share ideas. Network members are given access to Padlets, which allows members to chat with colleagues in between meetings, continue to share ideas and seek support from peers. Building on this positive peer support, they have established a list of 'buddies,' where settings have indicated that they wish to 'buddy up' with others. This helps the conversations and support to continue across the Network, between termly meetings.

If you are a mental health lead in a school or an education setting (including post-16 education), and would like to be added to the MHL Network mailing list, please email: Sheriff.Shittu@stoke.gov.uk

RESOURCES UPDATE

Get Real has released a Healthy Relationship Triangle Activity for 11-16-year-olds. This resource includes an animation that explains the healthy relationship triangle and how we can use it to check the healthiness of our relationships and some activity ideas on how this can be embedded into the classroom.

We have added this to our Healthy Relationships section within the Resource Library.

NSPCC Learning has published new teaching resources exploring the themes of healthy and unhealthy relationships. The resources include three films and accompanying lesson plans that follow four characters experiencing interpersonal domestic abuse, in familial, friendship and intimate partner relationships. The resources are aimed at 11-14-year-olds and seek to prevent harmful sexual behaviours and coercive control. The resources have been uploaded to our Resource Library under Abuse and Violence, Appropriate Behaviours, Exploitation, Gangs, Grooming, and Healthy Relationships.

CEOP has released and updated its popular "Exploited" resource with a new film, lesson plans and accompanying resources for 14-16-year-olds. The updated resource features three lessons centred on a situational film following teenage characters and explores abusive relationships including blackmail, coercion and sexual exploitation in parallel with two characters depicting the qualities of a healthy relationship.

Exploited should be delivered through structured lessons by teachers in education settings. In schools, it should be embedded in a developmental PSHE education curriculum, as part of Relationships and Sex Education.

CEOP has also updated its guidance on how to utilise its resources, this is alongside the previous recommendation that its resources are classroom-based and used in assemblies.

"Our education resources are designed to be used as primary prevention for children and young people up to the age of 18, in classroom settings. Therefore, they are not suitable to be used in a 1:1 setting with young people who are at risk or have already experienced online sexual abuse and exploitation. Additionally, to ensure that young people do not ever feel blamed for abuse they have experienced, delivery of our resources should not occur directly after an incident/issue has taken place."

ECONOMICS AND FINANCIAL LITERACY

When asked "what does PSHE stand for?", the most common response is Personal, Social, Health Education, which we will recognise is not correct - the E stands for Economic and is such an important part of this curriculum topic.

9 out of 10 teachers say that teaching about money should be delivered in PSHE, citizenship or across the curriculum according to Teacher Tapp.

The Economic Research Council has produced a paper makes the case for making economic education a statutory component of PSHE, developing a standardised economic curriculum, and integrating specialised training for teachers.

Barclays Life Skills has enhanced its suite of money skills resources for primary, include two brand new lessons for children aged 5-7 years. These resources hold the Young Money Quality Mark.

Young Enterprise has developed two frameworks which help support the planning, teaching and progression of financial education. They are designed to help educators to deliver financial education flexibly across the curriculum in Citizenship, PSHE education, maths and more. Young Enterprise also offers teacher training to help teachers feel more confident in delivering financial education.

NSPCC Learning has published a Helplines insight briefing on the impact of financial pressures on young people. Financial pressures are caused by any situation where there is difficulty or uncertainty in meeting financial commitments due to a shortage of money.

UPDATE FROM LOCAL PARTNERS

CHILD CRIMINAL EXPLOITATION

Staffordshire Police have completed several successful operations leading to the arrests of people suspected of drug supply and child exploitation is Stone and Kidsgrove.

The activity was led by Staffordshire Police's Child Exploitation Team who reiterated:

"We are determined to make Staffordshire and Stoke-on-Trent a hostile environment for those who think it is acceptable to exploit children and young people in this way."

Unfortunately, children and young people across Staffordshire and Stoke-on-Trent are being exploited by criminals. Education settings play a crucial role in protecting our children and young people from criminal exploitation.

- Provide training to all staff on recognising the signs of exploitation and understanding the risk factors. Catch22 can provide in-person or virtual workshops that aim to build awareness around the signs and indicators of exploitation, youth violence, knife crime, and County Lines.
- Educate children and young people by utilising the Resource Library, we have developed a comic book for 9-11-year-old children, that explores County Lines and we have other nationally sourced materials on healthy relationships, online safety, digital literacy and exploitation. If you are not already registered set up your account here. Remember there is no limit to how many accounts each setting in Staffordshire and Stoke-on-Trent can have and it is completely free.
- Provide workshops and resources for parents and carers to help them understand the risks and signs of exploitation and how to support their children.
- Create a safe environment where children and young people feel safe and supported. Encourage open communication and ensure they know they can seek help and support without judgment.
- Utilise the Risk Factor Matrix form to help professionals ask the right questions to identify potential abuse or exploitation in children and young people. Rather than acting as a checklist of questions, the form is designed to facilitate a conversation with the child or young person to help them understand their situation better.
- For children and young people identified as being "at risk" of criminal exploitation refer them for targeted work with Catch22 - this can be either one-to-one or group work if more than one person is identified and it is agreed that this would be a suitable intervention.
- Collaborate with local youth organisations to create a network of support and resources.

CLIMATE AMBASSADORS SCHEME

This is a network of skilled Climate Ambassadors providing free support to educational settings across England to develop and deliver impactful climate action plans. Climate Ambassadors is a two-year initiative, funded by the Department for Education as part of its Sustainability and Climate Change Strategy, which states that by the end of 2025 all education settings in England are expected to have a designated sustainability lead and a climate action plan.

Locally this scheme is being managed by Keele University. One of the themes that climate actions plans should cover is Climate Education and Green Skills, so this is something that PSHE Leads should be encouraging their school to take part in and access this additional support.

Find out more information here or by e-mailing climate-ambassadors.wm@keele.ac.uk

FUNDED LGBTQ+ LEADS TRAINING

Local charity Staffordshire Sexual Health Charity has received funding from the National Lottery to offer free CPD accredited training and support for staff to become LGBTQ+ leads and help make their school or college more inclusive. The LGBTQ+ lead role is designed to fit around staff's other responsibilities, and to support career development by enabling staff to demonstrate their leadership skills and commitment to equality and diversity. To find out more, please email Rowan@sshcharity.co.uk.

LOCAL NEWSLETTERS

Catch22 have published their monthly Missing, Child Exploitation and Vulnerability Research & Development Round-up, which provides information about the latest research, publications, and resources in this area.

The Violence Reduction Alliance has published a round-up of resources which provides the latest research and reports on violence.

FOR PARENTS AND CARERS

Partners have asked for the following information that is linked to the PSHE curriculum to be shared with parents and carers. We would be grateful if you could forward this information to them via your usual communication routes.

COMMUNITY SAFETY SURVEY

Staffordshire Police and Stoke-on-Trent City Council are running a survey to find out how residents feel about their local community. The information provided will help them plan how to support communities and address the issues which are important to them.

The survey will take about 15 minutes to complete and can be found online at this link:

Community Safety Survey

CHILD DEATH PREVENTION NEWSLETTER

The Child Death Overview Panel has asked for education settings to share their latest Child Death Prevention Newsletter which focuses on the Signs of Group B Strep Infection in Babies, you might also like to consider using the information with young people as they might be babysitting, or be young parents.

COUNTY LINES LETTER

Stoke-on-Trent City Council and Staffordshire Police are asking all education settings to share this letter with parents and carers to help raise awareness of county lines and the possible signs that could identify anyone who might be at risk so they can be supported and protected from harm.

FUNDED OPPORTUNITIES - COMMUNITY COHESION/PREVENT

The Stoke-on-Trent Local Authority Community Cohesion team have asked us to share information about two fully funded projects for frontline practitioners and pupils in secondary schools.

Safety Net - CPD for frontline practitioners

Safety Net is live virtual training sessions for frontline practitioners across the city, focused on keeping children safe online and engaging parents on key digital safety topics. This online training is a valuable opportunity to enhance your skills and will provide you with essential tools to:

Identify and address risks such as grooming, sexting, gang involvement, and radicalisation.
Understand hidden dangers in gaming platforms and lesser-known apps like Discord.
Build confidence in discussing sensitive topics with both children and parents.
Develop strategies to create positive online behaviours and open communication within families.

Click this link to watch a short video highlighting the topics covered in Safety Net and to find dates and times for the live virtual training sessions.

Places are limited and will be allocated on a first-come, first-served basis, so we encourage you to secure your spot early. If you have attended this training before, please recommend it to your colleagues so that we can train more individuals. By attending the training, your organisation can also benefit with funded parents follow-up session specifically designed for them.

Global Acts of Unity

Mike Haines, OBE, set up the charity, Global Acts of Unity, in the wake of his brother's murder with the aim to promote peace and educate young people on the rejection of hate, extremism, terrorism, and violence. David Haines, Mike's brother, was murdered by Islamic State (ISIS) in 2014 while he was a humanitarian aid worker in Syria. Instead of hating those that killed David, Mike chose to forgive them and now dedicates his life to educating young people on the dangers of extremism and hatred. In doing so he defies terrorists' aims and helps create a more united society.

To date he has spoken to 130,000 young people across the UK about his story, empowering them to recognise that hatred is a choice and we all have the power to reject it. Mike delivers 1 hour workshops to school pupils Year 8 and above and will be visiting Stoke on Trent and surrounding area between March 17th to April 4th 2025. We have allocated 27 workshops so your school can have more than one workshop.

WORLD AIDS DAY - 1 DEC

World AIDS Day is an opportunity to show strength and solidarity against HIV stigma and to remember lives lost.

Staffordshire Sexual Health Charity is a local organisation that works with people living with HIV. They can facilitate education settings that wish to sell the red ribbon and pin badges to fundraise for HIV support in Staffordshire. They can also offer secondary schools and colleges a free tutor time activity, to teach students about HIV and AIDS. If you would like to access this resource please email rowan@sshcharity.co.uk

The National Aids Trust provide a series of lesson plans that can be taught as a stand alone lesson or as a series of lessons on HIV.

The Children's HIV Association (CHIVA) has a toolkit to support education settings to empower children and young people to be better educated on HIV and be the generation that ends HIV stigma.

The Sexual Health & PSHE guidance for professionals, housed along with other resources linked to Sexual Health, can be found in the Resource Library on our website, and contains information about HIV and Aids, shows the links between broader sexually transmitted infections and the curriculum as well as develops subject knowledge including where to get tested to enable professionals to deliver sessions confidently and competently.

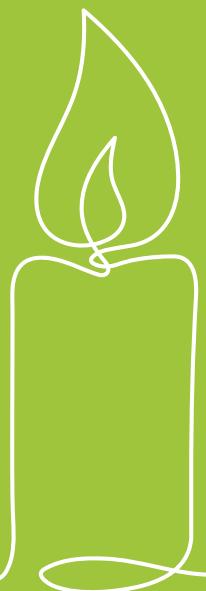

NATIONAL GRIEF AWARENESS WEEK - 2-8 DEC

National Grief Awareness Week is an annual event that aims to create a safe space to discuss grief and loss, and to encourage empathy and support for those who are grieving. This year's theme is "Shine a Light". Downloadable campaign materials including posters can be found here.

In the Change and Loss section of the Resource Library, you will find resources to support you to address this topic including:

- PSHE Association quality assured resources from Winston's Wish, suitable for 5-18 year olds, to support children and young people to develop the skills and understanding they need to deal with loss.
- National Youth Agency resources for young people and youth workers to discuss grief and bereavement.

For settings who are registered with The National College, there is a "Top Tips for Supporting Children in Dealing with Grief" guide, focused on supporting children in dealing with grief. It highlights how we can help children in processing grief healthily at what can be a potentially upsetting time.

INTERNATIONAL DAY OF PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES - 3 DEC

Dimensions have created a PSHE Association quality-assured, resource - I'm with Sam. A lesson plan, for students aged 11 to 13, aims to give students a better understanding of learning disabilities and autism, and the impact of potential bullying and discrimination.

BBC Teach has a collection of short films in which children with a range of disabilities, learning differences and medical conditions tell us about their lives. The content is designed to encourage understanding and inclusion, both at school and in the wider world.

Uniting Staffordshire Against Hate (USAH) can provide free in-person or online training specific to education settings on Hate Crimes and Hate Incidents, helping education staff to feel more confident in recognising, reporting and supporting people who may be affected. To find out more information or to book your session please email USAH.

INTERNATIONAL VOLUNTEER DAY - 5 DEC

According to the UN 1 in 3 young people volunteer globally.

Not only is it helpful to the community, but volunteering can transform lives by allowing young people opportunities to gain valuable transferable skills.

Volunteering serves as a training ground for honing skills, giving them an edge over those who do not have any volunteer experience.

Stoke-on-Trent City Council welcome volunteers over the age of 16 to start volunteering with them. You can find current opportunities on their website.

Alternatively, VAST's website also has the latest volunteer opportunities.

- Consider what volunteering opportunities your setting could create.
- Ask a local volunteer to come into your setting and talk about why they volunteer and the benefits.

HUMAN RIGHTS DAY - 10 DEC

We've added another pack to our ... & PSHE series - Rights & PSHE. Providing the learning objectives from the DfE and PSHE Association's Scheme of Work we've gathered the information educators will need to have the knowledge required to deliver sessions on this topic.

Resources from Amnesty International include Learning About Human Rights, a package of 10 interactive lessons for 5-11 year olds that provide pupils with an understanding of their own human rights and the values and attitudes that underpin them, and a Human Rights in Secondary School resource pack which contains seven lesson plans for ages 11-18, which use innovative ways to explore human rights. They can be stand-alone lessons or used in planning themed or drop-down days across the school.

AGENDA and Primary Agenda are free online toolkits to help explore ideas around equality and diversity with children and young people. The AGENDA packs are based on principles of equality, inclusivity, children's rights and social justice. They tackle the causes and consequences of violence against girls and women, homophobia and transphobia.

In their Twenty Assemblies for Primary Schools pack, UNICEF provide an outline for a Human Rights Day assembly (page 67).

These, and other resources linked to Rights, can be found in the Resource Library on our website.

CHRISTMAS & NEW YEAR

shorter days and darker nights, along with frantic schedules may mean that our mental health and wellbeing can take a hit during the cold winter months.

Children and young people often find the change of routine and the excitement of Christmas a little overwhelming so it's time to think about Christmas PSHE and winter wellbeing activities that you can use to help support the children and young people in your setting.

Christmas Values - Your setting might expressly deliver Character Education or values-based learning; whether or not this is true of your setting, you can use November and December to teach children about values such as love, kindness, compassion, patience, generosity, hope and gratitude.

Promote wellbeing during the winter months using resources from the Mental Health and Mindfulness sections of the Resource Library.
